Hi Everyone,

Good Morning and welcome to The BIBLE RAVE™ !

Today, I am to be discussing 1st Corinthians 15, verse 51; this is from the Wycliffe Bible, and also is going to be featured in my new book called "A Young Adult's Guide To Authenticity". So, it says, "Listen, I tell you a mystery: We will not all sleep, but we will all be changed-". So why is this so impactful for me? Well, okay, let me first tell you, it says let me tell you a mystery. This is something that apparently nobody else knows, right; and then it says, we will not all sleep.

What is sleep normally deal with- like death. And when you normally are in the Bible, you associate death with heaven because you go to sleep, and then it says, but we will all be changed. So here's the thing, I kinda took it first round as, look, all of yall aren't going to heaven, but all of you are going to be changed while on earth. Now, if you go in a Metaphysical aspect, it says, we will not all sleep. Sleep being not awoken to the true essence of life. The purpose of love, the purpose of interaction, the intensity that is needed to really see that there are so many tests asking you just to be a better person in general, and so we're asleep.

When you become awakened, enlightened, you become just really aware of the propaganda that's going on, or how you are actually feeling on the inside, and how much negativity you might need to clear out (based on your life, your loss of self story, or what is currently happening and evolving in your own situation). So with that in mind, we will not all sleep, meaning, we are not all going to be asleep from what's happening in life. Some of us are going to have an awakening, an enlightenment, and it says, but we will all be changed. Some of yall will sleep, some of yall won't, but you're definitely going to change. The universal constant of like change, ruled by the universal principle, which is in my "Ahava 'Love'" book, of love.

So, I thought this was really interesting. I thought it was really impactful, especially for a book trying to speak to young adults and teenagers, even adults if you want to get into it, who really need to learn how to be more authentic in themselves. "Listen, I tell you a mystery: We will not all sleep, but we will all be changed-". Alright, well I hope this sets [well] with you. If you have any questions, go ahead and email me (hello@confidencefaith.com), but I will talk to you later. Bye.
